

of planting Bourbon Cotton in the Bahama Islands, p. 54 ; of Mr. Hardie's History of the Yellow Fever at New-York, 1805, p. 56 ; of Dr. Valentin's French Treatise on the American Yellow Fever, p. 61 ; of Le Blond's Observations on the Yellow Fever, and Tropical Diseases, p. 65. With twenty-six Articles of Intelligence, Astronomical, Botanical, Medical, and Geographical, from p. 77 to 104 ; and an Appendix, containing a List of the Patents granted by the United States, in favour of Inventors and Discoverers, from 1790 to 1800 inclusive, p. 105 to 112.

No. II.

- I. Observations on the Mortality by Yellow Fever, among American Seamen at Havanna ; and on the Health and Longevity of the Cubans. By Henry Hill, Esq. Commercial Agent of the American Government at that Place 113
- II. Cursory Observations on the Soil, Climate, and Diseases of Georgia, continued and concluded. By Joshua E. White, M. D. of Savannah 117
- III. Speculations concerning the Agency of Orygene in promoting Conception. By Thomas Ewell, M. D. of George-Town, (District of Columbia) 130
- IV. Some remarkable Circumstances relative to the Continuance of Human Flesh without Putrefaction. By the Rev. David Wiley, of George-Town 133
- V. An Account of the Weather and Diseases in the County of Cumberland (Maine), from 1804 to 1805. By Jeremiah Barker, M. D. of Portland 137
- VI. Facts concerning Goitre, as it occurs among Females in the Towns of Camden, Sandgate, and Chester, (New-York and Vermont) with Conjectures concerning its Cause. By Dr. Jonathan Dorr, of Cambridge, (New-York) 141
- VII. Practical Remarks on the Similarity of American and Asiatic Fevers ; and on the Efficacy of Black Henbane and White Vitriol in curing Intermittents and Dysenteries. By Stubbins Ffirth, M. D. 145
- VIII. A Description of the Region in North-Carolina where Gold has been found. By Stephen Ayres, Esq. of New-Jersey 148
- IX. Arguments against the Importation of Yellow Fever. By Felix Pascalis, M. D. of New-York 151

of planting Bourbon Cotton in the Bahama Islands, p. 54 ; of Mr. Hardie's History of the Yellow Fever at New-York, 1805, p. 56 ; of Dr. Valentin's French Treatise on the American Yellow Fever, p. 61 ; of Le Blond's Observations on the Yellow Fever, and Tropical Diseases, p. 65. With twenty-six Articles of Intelligence, Astronomical, Botanical, Medical, and Geographical, from p. 77 to 104 ; and an Appendix, containing a List of the Patents granted by the United States, in favour of Inventors and Discoverers, from 1790 to 1800 inclusive, p. 105 to 112.

No. II.

- I. Observations on the Mortality by Yellow Fever, among American Seamen at Havanna ; and on the Health and Longevity of the Cubans. By Henry Hill, Esq. Commercial Agent of the American Government at that Place 113
- II. Cursory Observations on the Soil, Climate, and Diseases of Georgia, continued and concluded. By Joshua E. White, M. D. of Savannah 117
- III. Speculations concerning the Agency of Orygene in promoting Conception. By Thomas Ewell, M. D. of George-Town, (District of Columbia) 130
- IV. Some remarkable Circumstances relative to the Continuance of Human Flesh without Putrefaction. By the Rev. David Wiley, of George-Town 133
- V. An Account of the Weather and Diseases in the County of Cumberland (Maine), from 1804 to 1805. By Jeremiah Barker, M. D. of Portland 137
- VI. Facts concerning Goitre, as it occurs among Females in the Towns of Camden, Sandgate, and Chester, (New-York and Vermont) with Conjectures concerning its Cause. By Dr. Jonathan Dorr, of Cambridge, (New-York) 141
- VII. Practical Remarks on the Similarity of American and Asiatic Fevers ; and on the Efficacy of Black Henbane and White Vitriol in curing Intermittents and Dysenteries. By Stubbins Ffirth, M. D. 145
- VIII. A Description of the Region in North-Carolina where Gold has been found. By Stephen Ayres, Esq. of New-Jersey 148
- IX. Arguments against the Importation of Yellow Fever. By Felix Pascalis, M. D. of New-York 151

CONTENTS.

ix

X. Detailed Abstract of the Methodical Zoology of the French Professor Dumeril, done into English. By Samuel L. Mitchill, Professor of Chemistry in the University of New-York, Senator in Congress, &c. p. 156
 Review—of President Jefferson's Messages concerning Discoveries made in exploring the Missouri, Red River, and Washita, p. 165; of M'Mahon's American Gardener's Calendar, p. 174; of Pinckard's Notes on the West-Indies, p. 181; of Depons's Journey to the Eastern Part of Terra Firma, p. 182; and of Ricketson's Means of preserving Health, p. 194.

With twenty-five Articles of Information, on Medicine, Physics, Natural History, Chemistry, and Agriculture, from p. 197 to 221; and an Appendix, containing the Patents granted for American Inventions in 1801 and 1802, p. 222.

No. III.

- I. A Memoir on the Ice Islands which occupied the northern Parts of the Atlantic Ocean in the Spring and Summer of 1805. By Samuel L. Mitchill, Senator in Congress, and Professor of Chemistry in the University of New-York p. 225
- II. Account of the spontaneous Rise of the Chicken-pox on Block-Island. By Dr. Aaron C. Willey, of that Place 235
- III. A Case of Tetanus successfully treated. By Dr. Jeremiah Barker, of Portland, (Maine) 237
- IV. Examples of the Origin of Yellow (and uncontagious) Fevers in various Parts of the State of New-York. By Dr. John G. Scott 240
- V. Memoir of the Chinese Snake-Stones of Virginia, and on their Operation as Antidotes to Poison. By William H. Harding, Esq. 248
- VI. A Case of Recovery from the slipping of a Lead Bullet into the Trachea, and after the Performance of Tracheotomy. By John Newman, M. D. of Salisbury, (North-Carolina) 250
- VII. History of the Symptoms and Treatment of an obstinate Hypochondriac Malady; to which is added, an Account of a Distemper which prevailed in the Neighbourhood of Passamaquoddy-Bay in 1796. By D. Owen, Esq. of Campo-Bello 253

- VIII. Account of an Epidemic Fever which prevailed at Bourdeaux (France), in 1804. By William J. McNeven, M. D. of New-York p. 263
- IX. Cases of a Division of the Womb into two Cavities, by Means of a transverse Contraction of it. By Dr. Chatard, of Baltimore, (Maryland) 265
- Review—of Clavigero's History of Mexico, concluded, p. 268; of Gale's Ethereal Fire considered, p. 276; of Ewell's Discourses on the Laws of Matter, p. 280; and of Agnew's Treatise upon Cow-pox, p. 286.
- To which are annexed, nineteen Articles of Intelligence, Geographical, Medical, Curious, Speculative, and Experimental, from p. 288 to 322, and an Appendix, containing a further Enumeration of the Patents and Patentees who have received from Government exclusive Privileges for their Inventions, bringing them up to the beginning of 1805, p. 323 to 328.

No. IV.

- I. A Topographical and Medical Sketch of Providence, (Rhode-Island); with Reflections on Yellow Fever, and the Use of Mercury as a Remedy. By Dr. Levi Wheaton, of that Place p. 329
- II. A Memoir on the fascinating Power of American Serpents. By Hugh Williamson, M. D. & LL. D. &c. 341
- III. History of a Disease and Dissection, wherein Hair in considerable Quantity was found growing in the Urinary Bladder. By Dr. Amos Hamlin, of Durham, Green County (New-York) 348
- IV. Description of a petrified Horn, from the Helleberg, a Mountain westward of Albany. By Simeon De Witt, Esq. Surveyor-General of the State of New-York 350
- V. A Report to the Medical Society of Georgia, on the Medical Topography of Savannah and its Vicinity. By Dr. J. E. White, of that City 352
- VI. A Case of Locked Jaw. By Ezekiel Ostrander, M. D. of New-York 363
- VII. Remarkable Case of the swallowing of a Silver Spoon, and of its Removal from the intestinal Canal by Excision; with the Recovery of the Patient. By Dr. Samuel White, of the City of Hudson 367
- VIII. Remarks upon Heat, Moisture, and confined Air,

CONTENTS.

xi

and upon Changes of Temperature, as they act upon the Human Constitution. By Jacob V. Brower, M.

D. of New-York

p. 371

Review—of the Narrative of Lieutenant Pike's Expedition up the Mississippi to its Sources, p. 376; of Beguerie's History of the Yellow Fever which prevailed on Board a French Fleet, outward bound from Italy, by the Way of Spain, to the West-Indies, p. 390; of Caldwell's Oration on Quarantines, p. 394.

To which are subjoined, twenty-one Articles of Intelligence, Meteorological, Medical, Geographical, and Economical, from p. 401 to 431; and an Appendix, containing various public Proceedings in New-York, important to the Medical Profession: 1. An Act to incorporate Medical Societies, for the Purpose of regulating the Practice of Physic and Surgery in the State, p. 401. 2. An Act, to amend the before-mentioned Statute, p. 437. 3. The Law establishing an University in the State, p. 438. 4. An Act, enabling the University to incorporate a College of Physicians and Surgeons, p. 442. And, 5. The Charter granted by the University in Favour of Nicholas Romaine and others, constituting them a College of Physicians and Surgeons, p. 443.